Minutes:

This was an informal networking meeting and as such no formal minutes were recorded. Attendees were treated to two very informative and entertaining presentations:

Training for Work is a private Australian training company that specialises in delivering outcome focused and customised training to meet the needs of its clients – employers and students. Brent Quill from Training for Work made a very useful presentation on training opportunities available to business operators and owners for their employees. He specifically provided information regarding government funded training opportunities available to businesses, which Training for Work trainers will deliver to employees in their workplace. Please contact Brent via email – brent.quill@trainingforwork.com.au or on 1300 885 720, if you have any enquiries or visit their website for more information - <http://www.trainingforwork.com.au/>

WTFN is Australia's leading independent of quality factual, lifestyle and reality entertainment. WTFN shows, such as 'Coxy's Big Break' and 'Mercurio's Menu', appear on Australian commercial television networks and are also gaining an international audience. Rod Halsted, from WTFN, and Geoff Cox, from the television show 'Coxy's Big Break', presented on the opportunities available for showcasing Docklands as a destination for both potential residents and visitors alike. Please contact Rod Halsted via email: rhalsted@wtfn.com.au, if you have any enquiries or visit the WTFN website - <http://www.wtfn.com.au/> for further information about the shows and opportunities that may be of interest to you and your business.
